

E.T. Award

The E.T. Award - eHealth / Telemedicine Award for Innovative Patient Communication is assigned to the applicant who uses information and communication technology in the most innovative way, in order to establish new opportunities for communication in between health care providers and patients.

Eligibility Criteria

- Institutions or individuals active in (public) health care, industry or science
- Interdisciplinary groups or project consortia
- Organisations or associations
- The major contact person must be registered to the conference
- Submitted projects need to show first results in the context of health care provision, i.e. they should at least be in a pilot phase.

Submission

Submissions must be written in English or German language. The following data need to be sent to office@dHealth.at until 15.04.2019 in PDF format.

- Project description (max. 10 pages) including a short description (max. 1 page), describing the following aspects:
 - Innovation (application, technology, processes, interinstitutional cooperation, ...)
 - Benefit for patients (e.g. improved treatment quality, prevention of adverse events, new insights, economic benefits)
 - Presence of results so far
 - Sustainability
- Description of the applicant (short C.V. of the main contact person, description of the company / working group / institution /...)

Only complete submissions are forwarded to the expert panel.

Awarding Procedure

All submissions will be reviewed by an independent expert panel. The expert panel consists of independent, voluntary experts who only review submissions that they are neither directly nor indirectly involved in. The price will only be awarded if at least three projects are submitted. The E.T. Award will be awarded at the annual eHealth conference. No recourse to legal action is permitted.

Sponsored by

